MISSING WITH SISTER OF HIS YOUNG BRIDE

Mrs. Blue Declares Husband Has Fled with Wife of His Employer.

FACTS KEPT SECRET.

Donnelly, Deserted Husband, Collapses Under Strain, and Story Is Told to Police.

HOTEL-KEEPER NEAR DEATH.

Bartender Knew of Infatuation of Wife and Mother of Four Children for Young Brother-in-Law-

Mrs. J. A. Donnelly, thirty-eight years old, eloped from her husband, the pro-prietor of Donnelly's Hotel, at Westchester avenue and Main street, Westchester, with the manager of the hotel James Blue, according to the story tord to the police to-day by the wife of Blue, who is Mrs. Donnelly's sister. Accord ing to Mrs. Blue, who was married in the missing man only two months ago Mrs. Donnelly deserted four children when she went away on Sept. 13. whose real name is Antonio Reida, is likely, his wife says, to have headed for Donnelly is lying at the hotel near to death, with two physicians in constant attendance. A priest administered the last rites of the church to him last night. Up to the day of his wife's disappearance he was a strong, healthy man, but yesterday he broke down under the necvous strain.

Itlue is twenty-seven years old and entered Donnebly's employ a few years ago as botblack and boy of all work around the bar and stables. He, was bright, attentive to business and well liked by the guests. In time he was promoted to a position behind the bar, and two years ago was made manager of the hotel. In him Donnelly reposed the utmost confidence.

Mrs. Donnelly's sister lived at the hotel. She is twenty-six years old and Blue was very attentive to her and they were married two months ago and established a home at Seabury Park, Westchester.

Begged Him to Keep Quiet.

John Theiss, the bartender at Donnelly's, worked with Blue alternating from day to night work every two weeks. Soon after Blue's marriage Theiss got to the hotel early one morning and says that to his amazement he found proof that Mrs. Donnelly was infatuated with the manager.

The couple begged Theiss to keep quiet for the sake of the Donnelly chil-dren. This Theiss says he did on Mrs. pressed himself in the strongest terms Donnelly's promise to avoid Blue in against the alleged outrage perpeptraitfuture.

Theiss relieved Blue at 6 o'clock on the evening of Sept. 12. The manager said that he was going to his home at building, and said that the Cuban Gov-Scabury Park, and might be late in ceming the next day. So Theiss did not think it strange when he did not appear at his usual time. On the morning of Sept. Donnelly sent the four children, Mary, aged thirteen; Alice, aged eleven; Vera, aged nine, and Frances, aged seven, to school early and then left the house by the back way. Donnelly himself relieved Theiss at the bar and had no suspicion that all was not right until the children got home from school at noon and found their mother was miss-sing. She had prepared a lunch for them, however, and Donnelly supposed she had gone shopping and would be home in the afternoon. When she had not arrived at dark he began to investigate.

Cash and Jewels Gone.

Cesh and Jewels Gone.

He found, it is said, that $150 which he had placed in a secret drawer in nis desk had been taken and that all of Mrs. Donnelly's fewelry und valuables were missing. Tain Theless appeared and informed him of what he had learned a few weeks before. Donnelly sent to Blue's home and found he had not been seen there since early morning when he started ostensibly for the hotel.

Hoping, there might be a mistake, Donnelly cautioned Theiss and the children and Mrs. Blue to keep quiet. He made inquiries the next day and found that his wife and his manager had been seen together at One Hundred and Sevent-seventh street and Third avenue, bound for Manhattan. That was the only trace he could obta's.

The disappearance of the couple was hushed up until yesterday, when Donnelly fell unconscious on his face in the effice of the botel.

To-day Thelss and Mrs. Blue reported the matter to the Westchester police. Mrs. Blue says that her husband took away all the money he had saved and she believes he has sailed for Italy with her sister.
